Calhoun Democrats don't relish

ear chamber proceedings.

Democrats in Calhoun still have some rights that political bosses must be taught to respect.

When it comes to the pass that Democrats in Calhoun may not witness the proceedings of their agents at about time to protest.

Two members of the County Executive Committee voted to exclude Democrats from their meeting and a cunning chairman took snap judgment and declared the motion carried, although a quorum had not voted before astonished members of the committee could catch their breath.

Gov. Levellyn, of Kansas, when he heard of the arrest of Coxey, said it was a serious blunder. He said further: "It will have the effect of uniting the masses in a common cause. Populists as a rule look upon the demonstration in Washington as the beginning of a revolution."

Some of Mr. Johnston's over-zealous friends have been showing voters around here the absurd publication of the Montgomery Journal, relating to Col. Oates' attitude on the question of education. In justice to Col. Oates, and in the interest of fair play, we give from the Montgomery Advertiser what Col. Oates said in a speech in Mobile about the editor of the Journal which slandered him. Democrats can draw their own conclusions.

Secretary Carlisle has told a Georgia Congressman that both President Cleveland and himself are in favor of the repeal of the ten per cent tax on State banks and will soon make the fact public, known.

This will give the South plenty of sound money that will stay at home and will create a wide use for silver. This kind of legislation is worth more to the South than all the financial legislation Congress could pass in a century.

Coxey's army tried to parade on the capitol grounds at Washington and the leaders were arrested. The parade consisted of about 600, but thousands upon thousands of people witnessed it and a riot was narrowly averted when the leaders were arrested and some of them clubbed. Other contingents of the army are pushing on to Washington, and the unemployed working men along their lines of march sympathize with them. Fierce rioting has been going on in Cleveland, Ohio, rioting is threatened in the Tennessee coal fields, and one hundred and sixty thousand men have struck in the mining districts of the whole country.

The International Bi-metallic Conference formally opened in London the 2nd inst. Mr. Balfour, Conservative leader in the House of Commons, made a strong speech in favor of the coinage of silver through international agreement. Eminent men from all countries are in attendance and the sentiment is strongly for silver among them. Commenting upon the speech of Mr. Balfour, the Birmingham Age-Herald says: "President Cleveland may yet be enabled to carry out the Chicago platform and crown his administration by perfecting an international bi-metallic standard." It appears that the present attitude of the United States regarding silver has caused the closing of the India mints, and the consequent loss to English capitalists has brought about a tremendous sentiment for silver in England. There is the very slightest margin between the parties in England and Balfour may be any day premier of that country.

The future of silver is bright.

The editors are catching it lively all around. Some time ago the editor of an Opelika paper charged Col. Oates with having voted for an independent some years ago. Oates refuted the charge and then convicted the editor of once having voted for a negro.

The Montgomery Journal got up a campaign canard to injure Oates and Oates in return showed the paper was hostile to him because he had refused to extend financial aid to its editor.

The Mobile News has been very savage on Oates, and both Oates and Congressman Clarke have convicted its proprietor of having endeavored to sell the influence of his paper to the Republicans.

The Birmingham News recently published Kolb's letter to the effect that the Kolb would not be a candidate for United States Senator, but asks in the headline "who on earth will believe him?" This makes P. G. Bowman mad and he charges through the Age-Herald that while the Birmingham News is supporting Johnston, its editor, Mr. Rhodes, "goes upon the streets and denounces him as a man who has wrecked and ruined everybody who has had financial dealings with him."

Of course no such charge can truthfully lie at Capt. Johnston's door; but Bowman's statement puts Rhodes in a bad light. Let us now hear from Rhodes.

Meantime these things teach us that editors who are so ready to assail other people, should be first very sure that their records are clean.

Following the action of the county executive committee the Oates men of Anniston, thinking themselves discriminated against, held a public meeting in which the following resolution was passed unanimously:

Resolved, That the Wm. C. Oates club holds in fond and honorable remembrance the name of one who may not become a member of the club but who rebuked the undemocratic action of the county Democratic executive committee in holding a secret session, referring as you all know to Hon. Jno. M. Caldwell.

Mr. Caldwell, although a Johnston man, rose in the hall and protested against the action of the committee in expelling the public from the hall by going into secret session.

Following the meeting and during its session an Oates club of two hundred and sixty were formed, which additional names have swelled to about three hundred, we are informed.

This roused the Johnston men and a meeting was called for Friday night signed by three hundred and eighty names.

Thus do the Oates and Johnston men hustle in the Model city for their respective favorites. All will come together on the nominee whether he be Oates or Johnston, and the party will be none the worse for the little family fight now going on there, here and everywhere throughout the State.

It is admitted that at times in a campaign the executive committees of all parties meet in executive or secret session to discuss matters with reference to the conduct of the campaign and other party matters and plans not desirable for the opponents of the party to know; but certainly with the Democracy of Calhoun county, it is an innovation for the executive committee, when met for the purpose of determining when and how the primary meeting of the party shall be held, matters in which the rank and file of the party have a deep and lively interest, to shut the door in the face of Democrats who may wish to be present and have access to their immediate representatives upon the committee for the purpose of suggestion as to the wishes of the beats and for the further purpose of observing how those immediate representatives vote upon matters touching their interests. Until a very recent period the public have had access to the meetings of Democratic executive committees of Calhoun and no harm has come of it. The Democracy grows best and healthiest in the broad sunlight. Secrecy is so obnoxious to the American mind that all secret political societies have been miserable failures. The Democracy has always fought them. So deep seated is the prejudice against secrecy in the conduct of public affairs, that there is a large and growing sentiment in the United States against executive sessions of the United States Senate.

The people believe they have the right at all times to know what their servants and agents are doing, and they have.

We regard the secret session of our county executive committee as a blunder, made more from thoughtlessness than intention, and in common with other Democrats of the county hope we may never have another under like circumstances. The majority of the committee we know to be good daylight democrats and many of them since have openly expressed regret that they did not vote down the motion, as they could and should have done.

THE LECTURE.

Major Wright, of Talladega, delivered his lecture on DeSoto's Expedition in the College chapel Friday night to an appreciative audience.

The lecture showed that Hernando DeSoto starting with 1000 thoroughly equipped Spanish and Portuguese knights from Tampa, in May 1539, spending his first winter near Tallahassee. Thence marched northeast through Georgia to junction of Broad and Savannah rivers, penetrated South Carolina and marched thence through the mountains of North Georgia to Indian town, Chiabha, near the site of Rome. This name, now spelled "Cheaha", is given to Alabama's highest mountain, some 20 miles south of here on line between Talladega and Clay counties. From Chiabha, he entered Alabama soil, on north side of Coosa river, in July 1540. Soon crossing to the south side, he followed the banks of Coosa river all the time searching in the mountains for gold—to old Coosa town, near mouth of Talladega creek. Thence marching south and south-east, he crossed Tallapoosa river at the Indian town of Talise, situated in a horse shoe bend some four miles south of the present Tallahassee. Near where Montgomery now is, DeSoto met King Tuscaloosa, and crossing the Alabama river near Cahaba, he fought the bloody battle of Mauvilla, about 100 miles north of our Gulf City, Mobile. Thence, moving north, he crossed the Warrior near Carthage, not far south of Tuscaloosa, and the Tombigby near Columbus; and spent his second winter in the Chickasaw country, having been about 5 1/2 months on Alabama soil. The lecturer then followed DeSoto rapidly across the Mississippi near Memphis into Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas, Indian Territory, Louisiana and Texas. DeSoto died in June 1541 at Guachoya, just north of the junction of the Arkansas river with the Mississippi. Moscoso, his successor after trying to reach Mexico—then called New Spain—through Texas, returned to Guachoya, built five small ships, descended the Mississippi, and reached Tampico, Mexico with 300 survivors, clad in skins of wild animals, in September, 1543, the entire expedition occupying four months.

The lecturer concluded that a God in history prevented this strongest of Spanish expeditions from succeeding, because he reserved all this fair section for Anglo-Saxon civilization.

Notice to School Trustees.

The board of trustees for the Anniston High School is called to meet in the Methodist church, White Plains, Ala., Friday May 11th, at 11 a. m. We want to organize and get titles to property and attend to any other business which may be before us as a board. A full attendance is desired. The following named gentlemen are members of the board: J. H. Leslie, Dr. G. C. Williams, W. C. Scarborough, R. F. Watson, Dr. J. C. LeGrand, J. D. Kirby, J. A. Moore, Dr. J. M. Whiteside, A. B. Scarborough, J. W. Stridlin, Rev. E. U. Whiteside, C. E. Lusk, J. M. Stewart, W. A. Prickett, J. F. Fordham.

COTTON SEED.

I have put the Geo. W. Truitt cotton seed down to $1.50 per bushel. This places them in everybody's reach and everybody should try a few bushels. They are going.

PRIMARY ELECTION.

To the Democratic Voters of Beat No. 1 in Calhoun County, Ala.

In accordance with resolutions adopted by the County Democratic Executive Committee at its meeting on the 28th day of April 1894, and under and by virtue of the same, I as committed man in and for Beat No. 1, do hereby order a primary election to be opened and held between the hours of eight and nine o'clock in the morning and five o'clock in the afternoon, on the 12th day of May 1894 at the Court House in the town of Jacksonville, Alabama, for the purpose of electing eight (8) delegates to represent Beat No. 1 in the Democratic county convention to be held on the 16th day of May, 1894 at Jacksonville, Alabama. The manner of voting at said primary election to be substantially similar to that in elections prior to the 21st day of February 1893, except that registration of electors shall not be required. As managers of said election, I hereby appoint John H. Hall, T. R. Ward, J. J. Skelton and George Crow and request that they serve as such, and the same are hereby charged with the duties incident to their position.

The following rules, prescribed by the State Democratic Executive Committee as to the qualification of those entitled to vote at said primary election must be observed and enforced by the managers:

All qualified voters shall be entitled, and are requested, to vote at said primary election who come under any one of the following classifications, to wit:

- (1) All those who voted in the last national election for Cleveland and Stevenson.
- (2) Those Democrats who would have voted for Cleveland and Stevenson in the last national election, but were prevented from so voting because they were not able to go to the polls.
- (3) All those who will be entitled to vote in the next election, who are democrats, who were not qualified voters in the last election, and who will support the ticket nominated by the next Democratic State Convention.

JOS. J. ARNOLD, Committeeman for Beat No. 1.

Sunday School Association of Beat 1.

On the first Sabbath of May, at 3 o'clock, p. m., at the Jacksonville Presbyterian church, there will be a meeting of the Sunday Schools of Beat 1. Hon. John D. Hammond, Dr. T. W. Ayers and Mr. Joseph Carlier are to address the meeting.

All who are interested in the study of the Bible are earnestly requested to attend.

Notice to Electors of Beat 5.

Notice is hereby given that I will be at the following named places on the days mentioned for the purpose of registering the electors of Beat No. 5, to wit: Polkville, Tuesday, May 8th, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.; Boiling Springs, Wednesday, May 9th, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.; Hagan's Mill, Thursday, May 10th, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.; Morrisville, Friday, May 11th, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. All voters who desire to participate in the state and national elections in 1894 are earnestly requested to meet me at some place and register as required by law. I will be at home all other days not mentioned above until 12 m. from May 7th to May 26th. Take due notice and govern your selves accordingly.

E. M. RICH, Apr. 23, 1894. Register Beat 5.

LOOK HERE!

We are rather late telling you what we have this season. We have millinery almost at wholesale prices, having cut them to the lowest figure. Our white goods, laces, embroideries and dress goods are certainly a little cheaper than you will find them anywhere else. Come and be convinced. Don't forget to see our hosiery and silk undergarments. Neckties and baby caps at your own price. All will be cheap for cash.

Respectfully, Mrs. Kate Jelks.

Local and Personal.

Miss Jennie Wyly is visiting her sister in Anniston.

The Mayday picnic at Sulphur Springs was largely attended.

Hon. J. L. Morris, of Morrisville was in the city Thursday. Preaching at the Presbyterian church tomorrow, Robert Liston, pastor.

Major Jno. T. A. Hughes, of Piedmont, visited relatives here this week.

Col. Ed. Caldwell gives more attention to his Oat(e)s than to his billy goats.

The Episcopal Church steeple has been embellished with a new weather-vane.

Criminal court week causes the town to be flooded with visitors and the innkeepers are happy.

Prof. and Mrs. G. H. Eady, of White Plains, paid the city a pleasant visit Saturday last.

Mrs. Joe H. Privett and Miss Eva Privett have returned from a several week's visit to relatives in Rome.

There will be a grand picnic and dance at White's Mill the 3rd Saturday in May. Come, everybody, and bring your baskets.

Mr. William Hughes wife and daughter, and Mr. W. A. Gordon, of Rocky Mount, La., are on a visit to relatives in Jacksonville.

Mr. J. D. McLean, a former citizen of the county, now a prosperous business man of Dallas, Tex., was in Jacksonville during the week.

Dodgers scattered throughout the county announce the coming of Captain Jos. Forney Johnston on the 7th, and everybody is urged to attend the speaking in the courtroom at 11 a. m.

On the fourth page of this paper will be found W. T. Wilson's mammoth advertisement. The firm is everything it claims to be, and will stick to the prices named. Peruse carefully the "ad."

Boyd Green, of Alexandria, addressed an audience in the courtroom Thursday night, on the political issues of the day. Peter L. Hammond replied to it, and held the audience spell-bound for a few minutes with his soul-stirring eloquence.

NOTICE.

NOTICE.

I will be at Downing & Morris' store in Choccolocco for the purpose of registering voters from the 7th to the 26th of May except Thursday and Friday the 10th and 11th of May, on which days I will beat from City.

J. D. ENGLISH, Registrar Beat 12.

A Quarter Century Test.

For a quarter of a century Dr. King's New Discovery has been tested, and the millions who have received benefit from its use testify to its wonderful curative powers in all diseases of Throat, Chest and Lungs. A remedy that has stood the test so long and that has given so universal satisfaction is no experiment. Each bottle is positively guaranteed to give relief or the money will be refunded. It is admitted to be the most reliable for Coughs and Colds. Trial bottles free at the drug stores. Large size 50c and $1.00.

His Boldness Attracts.

Montgomery Advertiser.

Colonel Oates shows his fearlessness in nothing more distinctly than in his dealing with the puny newspapers over the State which pass the bounds of decency in their criticisms of him. His puncturing of the Opelika News puffed up frog commanded attention all over the State. At Mobile again Saturday he was just as bold. Here is what he said about The Montgomery Journal and The Mobile News:

You see charges made against me purporting to be extracts of speeches made in the past and published in one of your newspapers here. I know where it originated—that and other charges. A man on the staff, as editor of The Montgomery Journal, whose name is Hood, and a man who visited Washington some time last fall and tried to raise the wind to keep his paper from going under, and I declined to help him on the ground that I didn't have proof of his sound Democracy, is the man who got up these articles which have been produced.

Now, this Mobile paper is harping upon my character and record and trying to make it appear that I am a bad man and no good Democrat. Now, the editor of that paper, when he visited Washington and visited me several times to try to get me to interfere in the affairs in Mobile and have him made postmaster, thought I was a very good man; but when I refused to interfere in this district in his behalf he seemed to think differently. This paper assumes to be a great light in the Democratic camp, when only in the last campaign the man Brooke, who is manager of it, offered to sell it to the chairman of the Republican campaign committee. That is the sort of a Democrat he is. He had his sign up for sale, but no purchaser, but now he ought to put a big sign before the door: "Already sold."

Question Box.

It May Do as Much for You.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began the use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle. At all the drug stores.

NOTICE.

I will open my Registration books next Monday morning, May 7th for the purpose of registering the qualified voters of this precinct No. 1. I can be found in the office of D. Z. Goodlett in the court house, and will continue the registration until 6 o'clock p. m. Saturday the 26th May.

J. Y. HENDERSON, Registrar.

NOTICE.

I will have my office open on the 7th day of May, at the Post Office, and continue open to the close of May the 26th, Sundays excepted, for the purpose of registering the names of the voters in Beat 2.

COMMENTS.

Of Those Who Have Been Cured or Greatly Benefitted by Using the Electropoise.

Capt. T. H. Hobart, conductor on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, Decatur, Ala., used it on his baby for nervousness and indigestion, the doctors having said the child could not possibly live a week. From the first application of the Electropoise he began to improve, and now, after two weeks use of it he is entirely recovered.

B. F. Land, Dothan used it for paralysis and has been wonderfully improved in every way. "I fully believe that the Electropoise is all in all to the sick and will do all that is claimed for it."

George S. Ventrone, Mobile. "The Electropoise has been of great value to me, curing me of a distressing case of hay fever, of ten years standing, and my entire household use it as a prompt cure for colds, fever, sore throat and violent pains."

Joseph Williams, Stevenson. "The Electropoise has entirely cured my rheumatism, and my general health is much improved."

Rev. S. J. Knowles, Headland. "The value of the Electropoise is inestimable."

A similar list could be given from other states. There are many others, but the testimony of such men ought to convince the most skeptical. Don't impose upon their time and patience. It is our business.

A NARROW ESCAPE!

How it Happened.

The following remarkable event in a lady's life will interest the reader. For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which distressed me almost incessantly. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I would be compelled to sit up in bed and belch gas from my stomach until I thought every minute would be my last. There was a feeling of oppression about my heart, and I was afraid to draw a full breath. I couldn't sweep a room without sitting down and resting; but thank God by the help of New Heart Cure all that is past and I feel like another woman. Before using the New Heart Cure I had taken different so-called remedies and been treated by doctors without any benefit until I was told discouraged and disgusted. My husband bought me a bottle of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and an hour after I had taken it I felt a new life. I had a splendid appetite and sleep. I weighed 125 pounds when I began taking the remedy, and now I weigh 150 lbs. My effort in my case has been truly marvelous. It far surpasses any other medicine I have ever taken or any benefit I ever received from physician. Mrs. Harry Starr, Jackson, La., October 12, 1893.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists, or by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price in silver bottle, six bottles $5. Express prepaid. This great discovery by an eminent specialist in heart disease, contains neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

He had gone some miles and was passing through a rather dreary stretch of wooded country, when he espied a plain, old countryman mounted on a sorry nag coming towards him. As they passed each other both bowed, as is the fashion when strangers meet in out of the way places, but the old farmer in the home-spun suit stared hard at the soldiery figure as though not quite certain of recognition. # A HEROIC LITTLE MAID

A War Experience of General Forrest Related at Birmingham

By way of preface to the recitation of his poem, "The Veterans of the South," at the Birmingham Confederate reunion, Henry Clay Fairman, editor of the Sunny South, related the following thrilling story as having been vouched for by General N. C. Forrest himself:

"My authority," said the speaker, "Colonel John Goode, of Virginia, who related it to me and two others at Richmond last May with the remark that nobody ever heard the general repeat the incident without heart-thrills and watery eyes."

Forrest (as the story goes) was glowing under the conception of one of those bold and unexpected enterprises which have immortalized him as a knight of the saddle and a cavalry captain of the first class.

Night was upon him and a river was before him. The blow must be struck at once or the opportunity of surprising the enemy would be lost.

At the head of his eager and devoted column, he stopped at the door of a log cabin, and to the poor woman who appeared in answer to his call, he said:

"My good woman, I want to ford the river right away."

"You can't do it," she answered, "it's up."

A slender young girl came to the door and said:

"I know where you can cross. The mother frowned and interrupted:

"No, he can't, child! The river's 'up' I tell you, and it's dangerous! Dangerous!"

Forrest laughed at the strange word, and the faces of his followers reflected his invincible resolve.

The girl looked bravely at the general, and replied firmly:

"Mother, of course it's dangerous! But I know where he can get over!"

"Madam," said the commander, "I am General Forrest. Let your daughter go with me. I'll send her back, safe and sound."

The child rushed forward impetuously, and the anxious mother yielded.

"General, I'll ride behind you," cried the girl, and strong arms lifted her to her place, and the column pressed forward through the dark swamp under the guidance of the womanlike little maid.

By paths she led them a mile or two down the river, and length pointed out the place where the perilous attempt must be made, if made at all.

Ordering his men to halt, Forrest rode in to test the ford.

The stream was rocky, foaming and turbulent, and when the horseman was near the middle he was fired upon by federal pickets from the opposite banks; and before the general could realize her purposes the girl had risen to her feet on the horse and sprung in front of him!

"General!" she cried, clinging to his neck, "let me stay in front! If one of us must die, let me die! The south cannot spare you!"—Birmingham Age Herald.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Ants Wearing the Green.

"I once witnessed an interesting but peculiar spectacle in animal life, but one which I have never been able to account for," remarked Abraham I. Givens, of Brenham, Tex. "I was going home just at night fall over a sandy road, when I noticed directly in front of me what appeared to be a long line of green ribbon, about one-half of an inch thick. I stooped to examine it, and, to my astonishment, found that it was a procession of ants, marching three or four abreast, in very close order, each one carrying a little piece of a green leaf. The effect was a continuous line of green without any break. I went back to find the beginning, but as it issued from the grass at the roadside, I was unable to trace it further in that direction. I then followed it for several rods, until it entered the grass on the other side and was lost to sight. Whether it was Palm Sunday or St. Patrick's day with the ants, or some political jubilee they were celebrating, has always remained a mystery to me."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Each County Executive Committee shall decide for its county whether the delegates to the State Convention shall be selected by primary election, beat meetings, county conventions or mass meetings. All primary election and beat meetings which elect delegates to county conventions shall be held on Saturday, the 12th day of May, and all primary elections which are held to elect delegates to the State Convention and all county conventions or mass meetings that they held for the same purpose shall be held on Wednesday, May 16th.

No delegates to the Congressional Conventions shall be elected at the same time that delegates are elected to the State Convention. Delegates to the Congressional Convention shall be elected in such manner as the respective County Executive Committees shall determine, on Saturday, the 26th day of August, 1894, and the Congressional Conventions of the several districts in the State shall be held at such places as the respective Congressional Executive Committees may determine, on Tuesday Sept. 4th, 1894.

All qualified voters shall be entitled to, and are requested, to participate in the primaries, beat meetings, conventions and mass meetings of the party, who come under any one of the following classifications, to-wit:

First—All those who voted in the last National election for Cleveland and Stevenson.

Second—Those Democrats who would have voted for Cleveland and Stevenson in the last National election, but were prevented from so voting because they were not able to go to the polls.

Third—All those who will be entitled to vote in the next election who are democrats, who were not qualified voters in the last election, and who will support the ticket nominated by the next Democratic State Convention.

Anniston Politics.

Last issue we gave account of the Johnston and Oates clubs in the Model City. That left the Johnston men in the lead by some 80 votes. Below we give later details from the Hot Blast, headings and all. Our readers may draw their own conclusions.

THE GREATEST YET.

A Meeting of the Oates Club Big in Numbers and Immense in Enthusiasm.

The Oates club had another meeting last night. It was a thunderer.

It is no exaggeration whatever but a simple statement of facts to say that it was the most enthusiastic and the most well attended of any meeting yet held by either club.

When President McKleroy took the chair he introduced Mr. Fred A. Vaughan, the stalwart Tallapoosa county Democrat who made an Oates speech to the Johnston club the night before.

Mr. Vaughan made a brief but eloquent, forcible and encouraging talk. He said that Tallapoosa county would send down a solid Oates delegation and that although the county went for Kolb by 2400 in 1892 it would roll up a big majority for Oates this year.

He was followed by Col. Frank C. Bryan and Sheriff Ed. G. Caldwell, both of whom had good news to tell. The former said among other things, that beat 15 was full of Oates men. Col. Caldwell said Jacksonville, Piedmont, White Plains, Ladiga, Peak's Hill, and other beats in the northern portion of the county would go for Oates without a doubt.

C. A. Tittle, a Washertown Democrat, made a rousing speech with Oates and Cleveland as subjects. It was an able effort and was well received. When he declared that Grover Cleveland was the best man in the world the immense crowd jumped to its feet and with hats waving yelled itself hoarse.

D. D. McLeod followed and the cheering continued.

The crowd called for Dr. P. C. Candidus of Mobile who was present and he replied briefly that he was no speechmaker but that Mobile county was absolutely sure for Oates.

And again the throng yelled loud and long.

Mr. Warren F. Dent, of Montgomery, who was present and called for, gave still more glorious news about Montgomery county and said from what he knew and had heard that the first, second and third congressional districts would go for Oates solidly.

Once more enthusiasm reigned supreme.

This concluded the speechmaking and after a committee had been appointed to nominate thirty-six men who are to be selected Saturday as delegates to the county convention the meeting adjourned.

Another meeting will be held at the city court room tomorrow night.

The nominating committee is called by the chairman, Dr. J. F. Walker, to meet at the city court room tonight at 8 o'clock.—Hot Blast.

An Illustration of Strength.

If the attendance at the two club meetings last night is to be taken as an indication of the present respective strength of the two candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor, and there is no reason why it should not be, the Oates men are considerably in the majority, for it is said that by actual count only 93 men were at the Johnston meeting and various estimates of the Oates club crowd place it anywhere from 300 to 350 people. The Oates club had probably 150 voters at its first meeting, and 300 or 350 at the second, last night; the Johnston club had probably 250 or 300 at its first meeting; about 150 at its second and 92 last night, and the latter was to be a meeting of all Capt. Johnston's supporters. You can form your own conclusions.—Hot Blast.

The Oxford Oates club had a great and glorious meeting last night.

Something over one hundred members of the Anniston club went down and jollified with them.

Messrs. D. D. McLeod, E. G. Caldwell and H. G. Lamar made eloquent speeches for Oates and Democracy which were highly applauded.

Capt. T. H. Barry is president of the club, M. W. McCraw, secretary and eighty of the best people of Oxford subscribed members.—Hot Blast 11th inst.

HEROIC WOMAN.

To the Age-Herald.

I see in the Jacksonville, Ala., Republican an extract from your paper in reference to the "little maid" showing Forrest the ford on the river. As the narrator seemed to have very little idea of the circumstances I will give you in as brief a way as I can the case in point.

Why did not Henry Clay Fairman give the lady's name? It was within fifty miles of your city where this occurred, near Attala or Gadsden, and above the Black Creek falls, and the little maiden referred to was no other than Miss Emma Samsom, for whom the camp at Gadsden is named, and she was no child, but a young lady between 20 and 25 years of age.

A member of our camp, Col. Ed. E. Newman, was one of the 600 men who was with Gen. N. B. Forrest on that famous pursuit, and it was one of the greatest achievements of the late war, for Forrest captured 1700 federals (General Straight's command) with only 600 worn-out soldiers.

When the general arrived at Black Creek he found the bridge burnt. He rode up to the house of the widow Samsom, who lived in a log house surrounded by a low rail fence. He halted and inquired if there was any way by which he could cross the creek, and Mrs. Samsom replied that there was a ford up the creek that could be crossed by those knowing the ford. General Forrest inquired if there was any one who could pilot him to the crossing. At this suggested Miss Emma said: "Mother, I can go and show General Forrest the ford," to which her mother objected and Miss Emma replied that she was not afraid to trust herself with as brave a man as General Forrest, at the same time climbing up on the low fence in front of the house.

The general rode up and she sprang up behind him. He rode on ahead of his command and when they neared the creek the federals began to shoot at them from the opposite side. General Forrest suggested that she return, as it was dangerous for a lady, to which she replied that her loss would not be as great to the Confederacy as his. After showing them the ford she was sent back home.

The writer was asked to write an account of this young lady's heroism for Captain Kidd's history and wrote a more detailed account than the above, which was published in Captain Kidd's paper.

WILEY P. MANGHAM.

Rayville, La., May 9.

PIEDMONT POLITICS.

Piedmont, Ala., May 11.—The Johnston men polled the beat yesterday and announcing the result as 84 in favor of Oates. The beat meeting comes off tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

She—I don't see why Miss Gobbie should seem so attractive to all the gentlemen. He—The doctor has forbidden her ever eating ice cream.

The best victory is one won on principle rather than expediency.

It does not require a certificate of registration to vote in the primaries Saturday.

After you have registered preserve your registration certificate. You must show it when you vote.

Keep cool and don't tear your shirt over the primary election. The sun will still rise and set whether it be Oates or Johnston.

Little is to be gained in elections by the circulation of false reports calculated to excite the prejudice of voters, but it appears men will never learn the fact.

The REPUBLICAN will always defend a good democrat against unfair treatment, especially if that democrat be a battle-scarred Confederate soldier.

Choctaw County Democratic Executive Committee had ordered a county convention before the State Executive Committee took action. The county convention was, consequently, held Tuesday and Choctaw's seven delegates were elected and instructed for Oates.

Men should not grow angry with each other because they differ as to which democrat shall be the nominee for Governor. All good democrats will support the nominee and in two weeks more we will all be together. Accord to every one else the right of choice which you claim for yourself.

The labor troubles about Birmingham have been the cause of much uneasiness in the state, but we are glad to say the outlook is now better for preservation of the peace than it was some days ago. This is due to the prompt action of the Governor in upholding the law. We hope a speedy adjustment may take place between the miners and mine owners and that the men may be soon at work with good wages.

The story that the Oates men in Jacksonville have been engaged in "making war" on anybody is false. They have put up a straight Oates ticket and expect to elect it. The move for a compromise ticket did not go through, and no other course was left them than the one they have adopted. We know of no one in Jacksonville of sufficient importance to take all the trouble over that the Oates men have put themselves to in this cause. They move on the high plane of the party's best interests.

We are informed that some of the beat registrars have posted notices that they will register voters on certain Saturdays between the 7th and 26th of this month and some of the voters believe that they are the days named will they be allowed to register. The law requires the beat registrar to register voters on any day (Sundays excepted) beginning the 7th day of May and continuing eighteen days. Registrars should have it understood where voters can find them on all the days between the 7th and the 26th.

The Montgomery Journal seems to have exhausted itself in the one page slander of one of the Democratic candidates for governor. It has not had much in it worth reading since that publication. One of the editors of that paper is the man who came here some years ago and wrote stinging criticisms of Gen. Forney, which the General said were unfair to him. He believed the paper was then trying to beat him for congress, although it was published outside of his district and had no business interfering in the political affairs up this way.

Today (Saturday) decides who will be the nominee for Governor. As the primary meetings go so will go the county conventions, and as the county conventions go, so will go the State Convention. So far as the REPUBLICAN is concerned it can view the result with equanimity. It has not said one word in derogation of either candidate and it will have no crow to eat if either is nominated.

It will render either a cheerful and loyal support. It has recognized the fact that both Col. Oates and Capt. Johnston were canvassing their cause before the people, and it has been perfectly willing to support the choice of the people.

The editor started out to not even show his individual leaning between the two men, but the unfair attempt of some of Capt. Johnston's friends here to hurt as good a Democrat as Col. Oates by the circulation of the Montgomery Journal and the little Birmingham paper which copied the Journal's scandal, led it to say a word in defense of Oates and publish his reply to the slander. But for the unworthy attempt to injure a good Democrat, we say, by such methods, this paper would have said nothing for either until after the nomination. It would have done the same for Capt. Johnston, if Col. Oates' friends had circulated any slanderous matter of him.

While the paper, as a democratic organ, has been as nearly impartial as the circumstances have permitted, its editor has had his individual preference and opinion, which he has not been backward in expressing. He assumed the right he accords to all other men—the right to support the man of his choice.

Capt. Jos. F. Johnston spoke to a large audience in the court house Monday, composed of people from all parts of the county consisting of Johnston democrats, Oates democrats, Jeffersonians and Populites. Quite a number of ladies were out also, to whom the speaker paid a most graceful compliment.

Inasmuch as this notice of the speech will reach most of the readers of the REPUBLICAN after the primaries today (Saturday) can be of no practical benefit to either candidate, we refrain from any attempt to synopsize the speech. Suffice it is to say it was of the same character he has made throughout the State, the main features of which most newspaper readers were acquainted with. Capt. Johnston was among friends here. Even those who differ with him most widely in his method of campaign and his relation to the national democratic administration are personally very friendly to him. It should have been therefore expected he should have received a cordial greeting. He did; but still we believe the box is as likely to go for Oates as for Johnston. Col. Oates pleased the people when he spoke here. The attempt by some of Capt. Johnston's friends to convince voters that Oates was not a good democrat and not a friend to the education of our youth by the circulation of newspapers containing charges had reacted and helped Oates. This condition Capt. Johnston had to meet here. Still, with all this, he met the favor of a large part of his audience and left his friends more hopeful of his success, if he did not gain any votes.

Each County Executive Committee shall decide for its county whether the delegates to the State Convention shall be selected by primary election, beat meetings, county conventions or mass meetings. All primary election and beat meetings which elect delegates to county conventions shall be held on Saturday, the 12th day of May, and all primary elections which are held to elect delegates to the State Convention and all county conventions or mass meetings that they held for the same purpose shall be held on Wednesday, May 16th.

No delegates to the Congressional Conventions shall be elected at the same time that delegates are elected to the State Convention. Delegates to the Congressional Convention shall be elected in such manner as the respective County Executive Committee shall determine, on Saturday, the 26th day of August, 1894, and the Congressional Conventions of the several districts in the State shall be held at such places as the respective Congressional Executive Committees may determine, on Tuesday Sept. 4th, 1894.

All qualified voters shall be entitled, and are requested, to participate in the primaries, beat meetings, conventions and mass meetings of the party, who come under any one of the following classifications, to-wit:

First—All those who voted in the last National election for Cleveland and Stevenson.

Second—Those Democrats who would have voted for Cleveland and Stevenson in the last National election, but were prevented from so voting because they were not able to go to the polls.

Third—All those who will be entitled to vote in the next election who are democrats, who were not qualified voters in the last election, and who will support the ticket nominated by the next Democratic State Convention.

A. G. SMITH, Chairman.

Attachment Notice.

TRACED HORSES BLESSED

Strange Ceremony Preceding the Annual Race Events in Siena.
Twice each summer, in July and August, the horse race, or "palio," and medieval procession take place in the piazza at Siena. The "palio" (so called from the banner given as a prize), which has been annually made since 1650—with very few modifications—is really a contest between the different districts of the town. These districts are called "contrade," and each of these at the race is represented by nine or ten men in medieval costume and a horse.

Each horse entered for the race must first receive a benediction at the parish church of its contrada a few hours before it runs. The church doors are thrown open that all who wish to see the ceremony may enter, and in the sacristy are shown, hung on walls, the "palio" won by the contrada at former races, some of them a couple of centuries old.

The priest stands waiting at the altar. All eyes are turned to the door for the entrance of the horse. Possibly he deems it an honor to which he was not born, for it is only after much clattering of hoofs and plunging that he can be coaxed to enter and is led up to the high altar. Thus he stands surrounded by the company of the contrada in full costume, the jockey, helmet on head, the captain in full armor, standard bearer, drummer and pages. It is the most curious sight one can imagine in a church, the horses standing meekly before the altar and those brilliant costumes grouped around.

There is a moment's hush; then the priest steps forward and sprinkles the horse with holy water, reads a few words of blessing in Latin and sprinkles him again. The spectators give a lusty shout, and the horse is led triumphantly out.

By half past 6 p. m. the piazza is crammed with people of all sorts and conditions, and the balconies and windows of the houses, decorated with brilliant draperies, are crowded. At the third gun fire the course is cleared by mounted carabinieri, and the procession enters the piazza. First comes the town band in plain modern dark-blue uniforms, cocked hats, with white plumes, playing as it marches; a pause, and then some eight or nine heralds trumpeting gallantly—they are in costume, as is all the procession. Then pass the "contrade" one by one, each in a different costume of the middle ages. Each one has its emblem—such as dragon, snail, goose, wolf, owl, etc.—represented on their costumes, flags, armor and horse trappings. The jockeys, in costume and wearing the helmet, ride. The captains and their companies go on foot.

The horses are ridden without saddle or stirrups, and as they file out from under the archway of the palazzo, an oval gives each jockey his nerve. This is a whip made of ox sinew, and it is permissible during the race for a rider to strike his rival jockey and horses with this formidable weapon—a remnant of middle age brutality. Woe to the man who gets struck across the face with it. The jockey hats, now worn in place of the helmets, are of metal, painted to guard the head against the blows. The horses are at the starting point, the signal is given, and they are off—a good start. Selva, or Wood, is the favorite and leads from the first. We fear he will never keep up the pace, but he does, and in the second round he is still ahead. The other nine horses are well together, the jockeys belaboring right and left with their nerb. The people are excited to the highest pitch. The noise is deafening, for these peasants have sturdy voices. Even the strangers, who have come to see the spectacle and care not one jot which contrada wins, are constrained out of sympathy to shout too. In the third round Selva has more than held his own and comes fully two lengths ahead amid enthusiastic applause.

Instantly after the race the winning jockey is surrounded by policemen, who protect him till his company has time to rally round him, and there is good need of it, for the partisans of the beaten contrade are hot blooded and violent in their disappointment and would scarcely let their victorious rival escape sound of limb if they had a chance to get at him.—London Illustrated News.

Conditions Were Changed.
An amusing incident is told at the expense of Norwood Johnson, superintendent of the Manufacturers' Gas company at Canonsburg. He discovered a good spring one day last week about a mile from his well. He was delighted and that night laid his plans to have the water from the spring piped. Accordingly, men were set to work the next day laying a pipe line to the spring. It took some time to do the work, and when the pipemen finally laid the last section leading to the spring they were chagrined to find that the spring was dry.—Washington Reporter.

THE TEXT AND THE SITUATION

The Few Wasn't Big Enough For Uncle Lemmie and the Grass Widow.
Two clergymen were riding on the elevated the other day. Said one of them, "What is the funniest experience you ever had in church?" "Well, answered the other, a twinkling of an eye, 'if you mean with queer people I think it was during the vacation I have just finished. This year I spent my holidays in a quaint little town up north. I preached for them one Sunday."

"The town is full of queer characters. Among others is an old man, 'Uncle Lemmie.' When he was a young fellow, he had been disappointed in love, and from that time he has been sour. You should have seen him. His ears stuck out like those of Mother Hubbard's dog. Well down on them he wore a disreputable silk hat. His chin rested on the two prominent points of his collar, and in his hand he always carried a great, thick green cotton umbrella, tied with a rusty shoestring."

"Uncle Lemmie's particular thorn in the flesh was a grass widow, aggressive from her head to her feet. Her nose stuck straight out threateningly, her hair twisted up from her forehead, she walked like a steam engine, and when she walked every loop of her bonnet-ribbon shook. The very first sight of her to Uncle Lemmie was like the waving of a red flag to a bull. It happened that they went to the same church, but the ushers knew the situation well enough to have a goodly proportion of the sanctuary between them."

"Unfortunately the Sunday I preached there was a new usher. The opening services were well under way. Uncle Lemmie was there in a pew by himself. He was leaning on the umbrella and was looking at me with complacency. I was just about to announce my text, when down the aisle came the new usher, and in his wake the grass widow, to Uncle Lemmie's poy."

"Uncle Lemmie gave one look at the figure rustled into the pew, gathered up his umbrella, his hat and his prayer book and cleared the back of the pew in front of him with the agility of a boy. I never had such difficulty in announcing a text, for when Uncle Lemmie landed in the front pew my words rang out across the church."

"There hath no evil ever befallen you but such as is common to man, but God will with the temptation also make a way of escape."—New York Sun.

Dancing For Husbands.
Several Pendletonians went on Wednesday to the Indian celebration above the government school. They found a huge oblong wigwam, probably 75 feet in length. In the interior was gathered a motley throng, and around the center mats and skins were arranged for the spectators to squat upon.

Soon a dance began to the sound of weird and inharmonious music from the Siwash "band." It seemed to be a sort of love dance. It was the part of young squaws who wanted husbands to go forward within the circle and perform the various queer movements which constitute Indian dancing. If the appearance of any one of them struck a brave favorably, he would join her, thus indicating his desire to become her husband. Several of the dusky maidens received no such advances, and seemed much wounded in pride and feelings.—Pendleton East Oregonian.

In the Presence of Royalty.
A friend tells me rather an amusing little incident of the levee. He noticed close behind him a tall, stout man gorgeously attired in a volunteer colonel's uniform, whose plainly discernible nervousness and heated countenance showed that he was new to such receptions. As my informant stepped forward to make his obeisance to the prince his mind and raucous follower from sheer anxiety to see "how it was done," gave a big lurch forward and sent him staggering heavily into the arms of the heir apparent. A smile ran round the room, and the prince laughed audibly as he steadied himself from the shock of his unexpected burden. As for the unhappy cause of this contretemps, he was heard to murmur something about "begging his royal highness' pardon."—Woman.

Learn How to Rest.
A physician advises: "Learn how to rest. Don't wait to make a separate business of it. Let it become a part of the daily routine of occupation. Above all, begin relief, however slight, at the first moment its need is indicated. Stop work at your desk; lean back and close the eyes; relax the frame so far as possible for 15 minutes; lie down, if convenient, for the same length of time; in any way relieve the tension, however briefly, but promptly, and the result will be a large ratio of gain in endurance."

Left Handed People.
No purely left handed race has yet been discovered, although it is said that fully 70 per cent of the inhabitants of Punjab use the left hand in preference to the right. The next greatest per cent of left handedness is among the Hottentots of Africa and the Bushmen of Australia.—about 55 per cent. Dr. Marro says that 29 per cent of all criminals are left handed.—Exchange.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrup, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. Castoria prevents Vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.
"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osceola, Lowell, Mass.
"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quick nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Knebel, Conway, Ark.
Castoria.
"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

ATTENTION, STOCK MEN! Having consummated arrangements with Mr. J. H. Vivion, of Cartersville, Ga., for the use of his Kentucky bred stallion, Decree Chief, I respectfully and earnestly tender to the citizens of Calhoun county and the adjoining country, who have good mares, an opportunity of breeding to one of the most superior bred trotting stallions in America, and probably the only Dictator Stallion in the South, and of thereby embracing a chance to secure a first-class trotter, if not a race horse.

DECEEE CHIEF Will make the season of 1894 at the Model City stables in Anniston, Ala., upon the following terms: Twenty dollars for the season, due when mare is first bred, with the privilege of retaining her until season closes. If she fails to get in foal by the first service, Twenty-five dollars for insurance, due when mare is known to be in foal, or is parted with. If mare fails to get in foal, and part still owns her, she may be bred back next season, if the money has been paid and mare living and I keep him. Respectfully, L. G. JONES. Let me say to our people that in the pedigree, which can be seen at any stable, of Decree, the sire of Decree Chief, embracing the blood of Dictator, Harold and Pilot, Jr., there is no blood of any other sire in the pedigree family stallion living or dead, unless bred like him. Here are a few that have the same blood lines: Nancy Hanks..... 2:01 dam by Dictator. Direct..... 2:02 by Dictator, son of Dictator. Dictum..... 2:03 by Dictator, son of Dictator. ## Mr. Cleveland and the South.

"Abuse of Mr. Cleveland in Southern newspapers comes with very bad grace from them. They may not like all that Mr. Cleveland has done, but they should refrain from denunciation of the only Democratic president the country has had in thirty-four years. Party discipline can not be maintained in this way. Has he not acted kindly and fairly toward the South? Is not our minister to France Eastis, of Louisiana; our minister to Peru McKenzie, of Kentucky; our minister to Chili Porter, of Tennessee; and minister to Portugal Caruth, of Arkansas? Is not the war department presided over by Herbert, Alabama? Is not Smith, of Georgia, at the head of the interior department? And we could add to the list. When Senator Hill refused to permit the senate to confirm Wheeler or Hornblower, of New York, did not the president turn to Louisiana and call White to the supreme bench? Why, then, should Southern journals treat Mr. Cleveland with such scant respect? He deserves better of them. He has no political ambitions to be gratified. He has reached the summit. Yet he has refused to listen to the abuse coming from a quarter out of which only good will for him should come, and has proceeded to give his greatest favors to the South. When he was elected by Southern votes, every voter knew what his policies would be. He has always been open and frank. He has had no concealment of purpose. He has breathed no word of promise to the ear, merely to break it to the hope. He has evaded nothing, shirked nothing, dodged nothing. His word has been 'yea, yea, and nay, nay.' Sober discussion of his policies is well enough, and earnest remonstrance is well enough, but reckless denunciation is altogether out of keeping with the respect which should be shown him by his party press. A president who has shown the South as much consideration as has Mr. Cleveland should find respect, at least among all Southern Democrats. He will have plenty of defenders in the South between this date and next November, but those who defend him should be relieved of the necessity of apologizing for those who, claiming to be of the president's party, have been throwing so much mud at him.—Hot Blast.

A Very Expensive War.

The civil war cost the north $3,000,000,000. The pensions since have amounted to $1,500,000,000. But this is not all. At the present time, nearly thirty years after the close of the war, 300,000 more persons are drawing pensions than there were union troops in the field at any single time during the struggle, and 700,000 applications remain to be acted upon. Already, our pension expenses exceed those of all the nations of the earth. Where will it end? What will the war between the states finally cost us? In 1861 the total value of all the property in the states that seceded was $5,000,000,000. The New Orleans Picayune suggests that in view of the enormous expense of the war it would have been more economical if the north and south had settled their differences on a cash basis. It would have saved billions of dollars and hundreds of thousands of lives if the north had secured the emancipation of the slaves by paying full price for the entire 4,000,000 of them. When we get through paying for its history will record the fact that our civil war was the most expensive conflict in ancient or modern times.—Atlanta Constitution.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

The Collapse of Mrs. Lease.

Mrs. Mary Lease, the populist leader of Kansas, is a strong-minded woman, and she has proved her courage in many a bitter political campaign. But there are limits to human endurance, and Mrs. Lease has broken down at last. She is in a state of complete collapse. It seems that she recently received a letter from a Minnesota crank who said that it was his divine mission to kill her. The fact that the man had sent $10 to the Wichita chief of police to purchase a wreath for her coffin, profoundly impressed her; and strong-minded and brave as she is, she has since been in hourly dread of a visit from her enemy. She is a afraid that the fellow will in some way slip into her house at night and murder her in her sleep. Tormented by such apprehensions the leader of the populist crusade now lies groaning and tossing on a sick bed, and unless something is done to convince her that her life is not in danger she may be driven to insanity. Strong men have been terrorized in a similar fashion, and it is not surprising that a woman should be overcome by mysterious threats from an unknown source. It would make almost anybody uneasy to be threatened with assassination by an anonymous crank, especially when as an evidence of his determination he puts up his money to buy funeral decorations.—Atlanta Constitution.

Men voted against Colonel Oates on Saturday on the alleged ground that he was opposed to foreigners owning lands in this country. They didn't stop to obtain correct information. A man who lives in this country is a citizen and not a foreigner. Colonel Oates is opposed to a system of English lords owning hundreds of thousands of acres in the United States and yet remaining citizens of European countries. For this Colonel Oates has been charged with opposing the ownership of land by foreign born citizens. How cruel and unjust such a charge. So far from foreign born citizens opposing him for such a thing they should applaud him for wanting to keep land for those who live here, regardless of their place of birth. The truth will come to the front in the end and dispel calumny and misrepresentation.—Montgomery Advertiser.

It is interesting to know that while the United States is one of the richest countries in the world, its stock of gold and silver money is not by any means so large as that of France, which has more metallic money than any other nation. The gold coins of the world are equal in value to $3,582,605,000, and the silver coins to $4,042,700,000, while the paper money has a face value of $2,635,873,000. Of this vast amount France has $890,000,000 worth of gold and $700,000,000 worth of silver; the United States, $604,000,000 worth of gold and $615,000,000 worth of silver; and Great Britain, $550,000,000 worth of gold and $100,000,000 worth of silver. Germany has $600,000,000 worth of gold coin and $211,000,000 worth of silver, while Russia, with a much larger population, has $250,000,000 worth of gold and $60,000,000 worth of silver coin. She has, however, $100,000,000 worth of paper money, while South America keeps in circulation $600,000,000 worth, the United States $412,000,000, Austria $260,000,000, Italy $163,000,000, Germany $107,000,000, France $81,000,000 and Great Britain $50,000,000. If the gold coins of the United States were divided into equal shares, each person would have about $9. Following the same plan every English man, woman and child would have about $14.50, every German about $12, every Russian about $2.25 and every Frenchman about $20. The ratio for all kinds of money would still leave the Frenchman the richest man in the world, for if all the gold, silver and paper money in France were shared equally, he would have $40.50; while the citizen of the United States would have $24.50, the residents of Austria, Holland and Belgium a little more, the Englishman $13.50 and the Russian only $7.16.

Fighting Breckinridge. It strikes us that the women of Lexington have made a mistake in calling a mass meeting to protest against the re-election of Breckinridge. These ladies are right in condemning the congressman from their district, but they are not voters and they should leave active politics to their male relatives and friends. In a social way they can cause Breckinridge to be ostracized and this will, of course, injure his congressional chances, but farther than this the Lexington matrons and maidens need not go. The Breckinridge case is not a proper subject to be discussed by a mass meeting of women, and those who participate in the meeting will find that they have drawn the criticism of the foul-mouthed element of society. Worse than the proposed mass meeting is the attitude of some of the young ladies of Lexington, if the Louisville Times is correctly informed. That paper states that the young ladies of the state college have decided not to accept the attentions of young men who wear Breckinridge buttons. The other day two young ladies told a young man who joined them on the street that they would not walk with him while he displayed a Breckinridge button. The gentleman protested, but finally yielded, and took off the objectionable ornament and put it in his pocket. Now, we do not believe that this free talk between men and women about Breckinridge does the cause of morality any good. In fact it would do less harm to re-elect the old sinner than to have his conduct discussed by the young people of both sexes when they meet. The women of Kentucky can make their influence felt through their husbands, fathers, brothers and sons. They are not obliged to take the stump or take part in a street corner campaign.—Atlanta Constitution.

Cranks in Washington. Washington, May 14.—A disturbance was created in the house today by the sudden interruption of the even tenor of the proceedings a burly negro in the center gallery arising in his place and shouting: "Mr. Speaker of the house of representatives!" Instantly the house was in confusion and all eyes were turned upon the orator in the gallery. The speaker, who was the first to regain his composure, directed the doorkeeper to remove the offender. The man was of powerful physique, however, and the doorkeeper was unable to oust him for some time, the negro endeavoring to deliver his alleged divinely inspired message to the effect that the Lord had commanded him to come to the speaker of the house and order him to pass the Cozy boys. He was finally ejected. The crank's name is Malcolm A. Cherry. He is a blacksmith residing in this city. He insists that he is not insane, but his mind is manifestly unbalanced. When questioned by the capitol police, he said that unless the "Cozy good roads" bill is passed, there will be a general destruction of government property in Washington. Congress would be given until the 24th instant to pass the bill, he said. If it did not become a law by that time, the public buildings would be destroyed by bombs. Cherry was taken to the guardroom in the basement of the capitol. He was perfectly tractable and offered no violence. He was retained in the guardroom about thirty minutes, when he was taken to the Sixth precinct station. "The town is full of cranks," said Colonel Snow, the sergeant-at-arms of the house, in speaking of Cherry's arrest. "You can't walk Pennsylvania avenue without meeting them at every turn. There is an individuality about cranks, and a student of human nature will recognize one at a glance. We have taken every precaution to guard the members of the house from violent actions of these people, for a crank is violent when you least expect it. But no precaution can prevent an evil disposed person from coming into the gallery with a destructive weapon in his pocket. During the excitement about the 1st of the month, we kept an officer in citizen's clothes in the gallery, and every suspicious person was carefully watched. It is our rule not to permit persons carrying valises or packages of any description to enter the gallery. Where a man is regarded with suspicion, the officers keep close upon him to prevent any overact. There probably never were so many cranks in Washington as at present, and the white house and the capitol are their storm centers. Do I anticipate trouble with them? I do not, because no precaution is neglected to protect everybody about the capitol." The promptness with which Cherry was ejected from the house gallery shows the excellent system in vogue at the capitol in reference to cranks. Cherry had not spoken fifteen seconds before Doorkeeper Bowen grabbed him by the collar and dragged him into the corridor outside.

COUNTY REPUBLICANS. CALL FOR MEETINGS AND COUNTY CONVENTION. Rooms of the Rep. County Executive Committee. Anniston, May 14, 1894. In obedience to instruction by the committee at its meeting in this city on the 12th inst, I hereby give notice to the several beats of the county that there will be held a mass meeting for the purpose of selecting delegates to the county convention which convenes in the city of Anniston, May 26, at 12 o'clock noon in the court room to elect delegates to the convention. All beat meetings will be held in their respective beats between the hours of 12 and 2 o'clock on Saturday the 19th inst. The members of the executive committee will call the meeting to order and proceed to a proper organization of said beat by selecting the number of delegates said beat is entitled to—namely:

1—Jacksonville	6
2—Alexandria	6
3—Ladlow	6
4—Madrox	6
5—Polkville	6
6—Peaks Hill	3
7—Hollisworth	3

15—Anniston	80
16—Ladlow	3
17—DeFremerville	3
18—Obatchie	3
19—Duke	3

All persons who have heretofore acted with the Republican party or who expect in the future to do so, regardless of party factions or trouble are respectfully and earnestly urged to take part and participate in said beat meetings. Respectfully, WILEY HUDSON, Chairman Co. Ex. Committee. LYNDS GREEN, Secretary.

The Methodist General Conference discussed on Friday the reunion of the Northern and Southern branches of the church. In 1844 the church divided on the question of slavery. So wide was the breach that not for thirty years did one general conference send delegates to the other. But since 1874 the fraternal relations have been growing closer and closer. As the severed union has been reunited, so this great denomination should reunite. The two churches were born of the same mother and rocked in the same cradle. They are branches of the same vine. Their aims and principles are identical. A cardinal principle of the church is unity in belief, in action, in thought. This principle should be extended to the reunion of the two branches. Even divided the church has shown marvelous growth. Her communicants have multiplied seven-fold more than the population has increased. The Methodists number one-fourth of the entire population of this country. If divided it could accomplish such wonders, what could Methodism not do united!—Age-Herald.

Suing for $20,000. MONTGOMERY, ALA., May 11.—Suit has been filed in Jackson county, Alabama, by the executors of the late R. C. Ross, claiming damages of $20,000 against the Western Union Telegraph Company. Last December Cashier R. C. Ross, of the First National bank of Scottsboro, was shot and killed by the four Skelton boys at Stevenson for seduction of their sister, Miss Annie Skelton. All of the parties were high in social life, Ross being married, and having a family. All parties lived at Scottsboro. On the day of the killing, Ross was in Stevenson, twenty miles away and his brother learning that the Skelton boys had set out to find him, wired Cashier Ross, so the complainant alleges, of his danger. Had the message been delivered, the complainant claims, Ross would have gotten out of the way and the murder would have been avoided. The best legal talent in the state will prosecute the case.

ELECTROPOISE

CURES CANCER.

Keyville, Fla., April 17, 1894. Messrs. Dubois & Webb, Louisville, Ky.—Dear Sirs: "About eleven months ago I bought from you an Electropoise for the purpose of treating cancer. I had one of about ten years' standing, and it had reached a stage where it was making rapid progress, being about the size of a silver dollar. I knew that I had to do something or my time was about up, and you being the only party that I corresponded with that would give me any assurance of a cure, got my patronage. I am now happy to inform you that the cancer is no more, the Electropoise arrested the progress of the cancer perceptibly in about thirty-six to forty-eight hours and gradually and slowly grew less until now there is a place about the size of a pin head that is not quite healed but gradually closing up. You can use this or any part of it as a testimonial if you wish. Very truly yours, M. M. Lillibridge."

D. A. Bryant, Hackneyville:—I was badly crippled with Rheumatism, also had a bad kidney trouble, I was helpless and could do no work. The Electropoise cured me and enabled me to work regularly."

Rev. W. C. Hearn, Talladega:—"For producing calm refreshing sleep and curing sciatic rheumatism the Electropoise can not be equaled."

Joseph Williams, Stevenson:—"I can walk all over town and even run, whereas a few weeks ago I was a helpless cripple, the Electropoise did it."

Mrs. W. P. Nelson, Sunshine:—"My recovery was wonderful. I have suffered the Electropoise on several of my neighbors, for various ailments, nausea, kidney trouble of the worst form, all with the most gratifying results."

Electropoise for rent or sale, standard and pocket sizes, DuBois & Webb, Birmingham, Ala.

A magazine writer has been looking up the socialist laws passed by the different States in the years 1889 and 1890. Alabama passed two such laws in those years. South Carolina has never passed a socialist law. The South makes a good showing in this respect. Probably because the intelligent class control politics in the South. The Northwestern States are more given to socialist tendencies. The people are educated to a certain degree, but not sufficiently to resist the deceptions of socialism. "A little learning is a dangerous thing."—Ex.

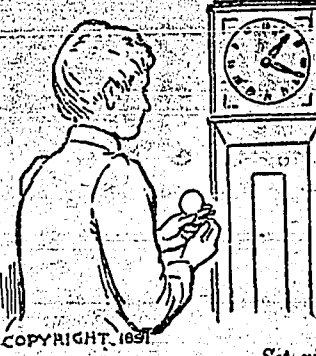

SAILED THE SEAS 38 YEARS.

One of His Experiences. For thirty-eight years Capt. Loud followed the sea, most of that time as master of a vessel, and upon retirement from the service was appointed by the Secretary of the United States Treasury to superintend the fisheries in Alaska, which position he held five years. He relates one experience as follows: "For several years I had been troubled with general nervousness and pain in the region of my heart. My greatest affliction was sleeplessness; it was almost impossible at any time to obtain rest and sleep. Having seen Dr. Miles' remedy advertised in a San Diego Service. After taking a small quantity the benefit received was so great that I was positively cured. I had been troubled with nervousness and general nervousness, which would finally be injurious to me, but on being assured by the drugstore that it was perfectly harmless, I continued to take it with the heartiest cheer. Today I can conscientiously say that Dr. Miles' Nervine and New Heart Cure did more for me than anything I had ever taken. Had I been a physician, I would have recommended it to all my patients. I have written and heartily recommend them to all afflicted with nervousness and general nervousness, or by Dr. Miles' Nervine and New Heart Cure are sold by all druggists on a paid guarantee, or by Dr. Miles' Nervine and New Heart Cure, on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5 express prepaid. They are free from all opiates and dangerous drugs."

A Million Friends. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds. If you have never used this Great Cough Medicine, you will find it a wonderful curative power in all diseases of Throat, Chest and Lungs. Each bottle is guaranteed to do all that is claimed or money refunded. Trial bottles free at all the drug stores. Large bottles 50c and $1.00.

Four Big Successes. Having the needed merit to more than make good all the advertising claimed for them, the following four remedies have reached a phenomenal sale. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds; Electric Bitters, the great remedy for Liver, Stomach and Kidneys; Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world; and Dr. Kew Life Pills, which are a perfect pill. All these remedies are guaranteed to do just what is claimed for them and the dealer whose name is attached herewith will be glad to tell you more of more of them. Sold at all drug stores.

Set right all the proper functions of womanhood. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the remedy. It regulates and promotes their action, and removes the obstructions and suppressions which cause trouble and misery. At the two critical periods in a woman's life—the change from girlhood to womanhood, and later, the "change of life"—it is a perfectly safe and an especially valuable remedial agent, that can produce only good results. It's a powerful, invigorating tonic, and a soothing and strengthening nerve; a legitimate medicine—purely vegetable, perfectly harmless—and carefully adapted, by an experienced physician, to woman's delicate needs. For all the derangements, irregularities, and weaknesses peculiar to the sex, the "Favorite Prescription" is a remedy so certain that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't give satisfaction in every case, the money is returned. No other medicine for women is sold in this way. No other medicine can be.

The decease of Mr. W. C. Eubank breaks into the ranks of the pioneers of Jefferson county. The year 1818 marked the birth of Dr. Joseph R. Smith, Mr. Duncan McLaughlin, Mr. Ambrose Hardin and Mr. W. C. Eubank. The first three mentioned are the last living of the first-made children born in Jefferson county. They were not the first born in the county, for it was settled by whites in 1814. In 1818 this county was known as Blount county, in Mississippi territory. The State was admitted to the union in 1819. Mr. Eubank filled the offices of Sheriff and County Administrator at different times.—Age-Herald.

Accident to a Cleburne Man.

James M. Payne, of Chulafinnee, Cleburne county, fell from a second story window at the Merchant's hotel in Montgomery Friday night and broke his neck. He died instantly.

Mr. Payne was a well known farmer of Cleburne county and was in good financial circumstances. He went to Montgomery as a witness in the United States court.

He was a drinking man, and as soon as he arrived in the city, he began to get intoxicated. He registered at the Merchant's hotel shortly before dinner, and there met an old friend from his county, Mr. J. R. Caldwell, of Anniston. They strolled around town together and then Mr. Caldwell carried him to the government building and made an effort to have him appear before the jury at once, as he saw that Payne was drinking heavily. In this he failed and they returned to the hotel.

After supper Caldwell asked his friend if he was going out to hear Col. Oates. He replied that he was not, but intended to go to bed. Consequently, he was taken to his room by Caldwell, who told him to lock his door, as he would be out several hours—they were to room together. When Caldwell returned from the speaking he went up to the room, which was No. 35, and knocked on the door. Payne arose and went to the door, but was unable to unlock it. He then returned as though to get the key from under the pillow, where it was afterwards found, but instead he went to the window and fell out.

Caldwell says that he heard a muffled sound when Payne returned from the door, but he thought it was the intoxicated man falling heavily on the bed.

He went down into the office and procured another key from night Clerk Summers and going back to the room entered it and found the light burning, but Payne was not in the room. He looked out the window and saw the man lying prostrate in the alley. Rushing down to the office he told the guests of what he had seen and they went round to the alley with him. Payne was found lying on his back dressed in his night clothes, with his arms outstretched. His head was about two feet from the wall and his body and the wall formed a right angle. Blood was gushing from his ears and the crown of the head was crushed in. He was dead before any one reached him. His neck was found to have been broken.

Alabama Educational Association.

The Alabama Educational Association will hold its thirteenth annual session at Blount Springs, Ala., June 27-28-29, 1894.

The official bulletin, containing programme, information as to hotel rates and railroad connections, and other matters of interest, will be issued in a short while. Send your own name and the name of others interested on a postal card to the undersigned and receive a copy of the bulletin as soon as issued. Members should send the membership fee of one dollar as soon as practicable to Prof. E. H. Foster, Birmingham, Ala., secretary of the association.

Each County Executive Committee shall decide for its county whether the delegates to the State Convention shall be selected by primary election, beat meetings, county conventions or mass meetings. All primary election and beat meetings which elect delegates to county conventions shall be held on Saturday, the 12th day of May, and all primary elections which are held to elect delegates to the State Convention and all county conventions or mass meetings that they held for the same purpose shall be held on Wednesday, May 10th.

No delegates to the Congressional Conventions shall be elected at the same time that delegates are elected to the State Convention. Delegates to the Congressional Convention shall be elected in such manner as the respective County Executive Committees shall determine, on Saturday, the 26th day of August, 1894, and the Congressional Conventions of the several districts in the State shall be held at such places as the respective Congressional Executive Committees may determine, on Tuesday Sept. 4th, 1894.

All qualified voters shall be entitled, and are requested, to participate in the primaries, beat meetings, conventions and mass meetings of the party, who come under any one of the following classifications, to-wit:

First—All those who voted in the last National election for Cleveland and Stevenson.

Second—Those Democrats who would have voted for Cleveland and Stevenson in the last National election, but were prevented from so voting because they were not able to go to the polls.

Third—All those who will be entitled to vote in the next election who are democrats, who were not qualified voters in the last election, and who will support the ticket nominated by the next Democratic State Convention.

A. G. SMITH, Chairman.

Attachment Notice.

Stinson Grocery Co., vs. J. A. Hogue, Deb't.

Whereas, two writs of attachment issued out of the Circuit Court of Calhoun County, Ala., on March 27th 1894, against the said defendant, who it appears is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and resides in the State of Georgia, have been by the Sheriff of Calhoun County returned to me the Clerk of said court, executed by levying the same upon the following described real estate to-wit: The one-third undivided interest in Lot 6, Block 206, and Lot 20, Block 140 in Anniston, Ala., as the property of said Defendant. This is therefore to notify the said Defendant of the issuance and execution of said writs of attachment, and that the same will stand for trial at the Fall Term 1894 of said court at Jacksonville Ala. Given under my hand this March 29th 1894.

JNO. P. WEAVER, Clerk.

vs.

Heirs of W. H. Forney, dec'd.

In Probate Court Calhoun county,

Special Term, March 27th 1894.

This day came H. L. Stevenson, the administrator of the estate of W.

H. Forney, deceased, and presents to this Court his petition in writing and under oath, and in form required by law, praying for an order and decree of this Court, to sell certain real estate described in said petition, for the purpose of distribution and payment of debt, upon the grounds, that the personal property is insufficient to pay the debts and said property cannot be equitably divided without a sale, which said petition is examined by this Court and placed on file for consideration of all concerned. It is therefore ordered and decreed by the Court, that the 7th day of May 1894 be, and it is hereby, appointed as a day for hearing and consideration of said petition, and that notice of the day and nature of said petition, and the day set to hear and determine the same, be given by publication for three successive weeks in the Jack-

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osborn,

Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quick nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Knechtel,

Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

Dr. A. Ancona, M. D.,

111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

ATTENTION, STOCK MEN!

Having consummated arrangements with Mr. J. H. Vixen, of Cartersville, Ga., for the use of his Kentucky bred stallion, Deer Chief, I respectfully and earnestly tender to the citizens of Calhoun county and the adjoining county, who have good mares, an opportunity of breeding to one of the most superiorly bred trotting stallions in America, and probably the only Dictator Stallion in the South, and of thereby embracing a chance to secure a first-class trotter, if not a race horse.

DEER CHIEF

Will make the season of 1894 at the Model City stables in Anniston, Ala., upon the following terms: Twenty dollars for the season, due when mare is first bred, with the privilege of returning her until season closes; if she fails to get in and by the first service, Twenty-five dollars for insurance, due when mare is known to be in heat, or is parted with. If mare fails to get in heat, and party still owns her, she may be bred back next season, if the money has been paid and stallion living and I keep him. Respectfully, J. G. JONES

Let me say to our people that in the pedigree, which can be seen at my stables, of Deer Chief, the sire of Deer Chief, embracing the blood of Dictator, Harold and Pilot, Jr., there is combined more extreme speed than in the pedigree of any stallion living or dead, unless bred like him. Here are a few that have the same blood lines:

Sammy Hanks	2:01	gain by Dictator
Direct	2:04	by Dictator, son of Dictator
Directum	2:04	by Dictator, son of Dictator
Jay Eye See	2:04	by Dictator
Holt	2:04	by Hartford, son of Harold
Kremlin	2:07	by Lord Russell, son of Harold
Alex. (sired to Harold)	2:07	by Patrons; Gr. son of Harold
Maud S.	2:07	by Harold

2:05 13 32 average of eight animals

Where could there be such a record shown in the history of trotting contests? Then when you combine the blood of these two great sons of old Hambletonian and of the great Pilot, Jr., with that of the Mammoth Chief family, as is done in Deer Chief, and also backed up by the best strains of the thoroughbred blood on the way back to old Imp and Messenger, you certainly have breeding that should satisfy the most exacting.

If Deer Chief, who is not yet grown, had not met with the misfortune to get one hind leg almost cut off when he was but two years old, he would have been trained, and would doubtless have had before this time a very low mark to his credit, for he has a splendid trotting gait. He is the same size, style, color, and the same kin to Dictator (grandson of Directum), who is beyond dispute, the greatest trotting horse now living, or that the world has ever produced, and he reached that lofty pinnacle at four years of age.

The Democratic State Convention nominated Wm. C. Oates to bear the standard of the party until the August election. He did well. He is one of the very ablest and best Democrats in the state. A victory under his standard will be a clear one. In it there will be no element of surrender of any part of Democratic ground, no concession to error. It will mean that Alabama stands by the National Democratic party and its leader and refuses to surrender its best friend at the clamor of Kolb and his cohorts. A victory under such circumstances will be lasting. It will teach the young men of the State that it is better to stand bravely by principle and have it out like men than to straddle and yield to the cowardly suggestions of Expediency. It will put the Democracy of Alabama before the whole country as the very impersonation of courage—upright, square-shouldered, clear-eyed and hopeful.

It will mean that the first State in the Union to speak has declared for honest money, equal division of the tax burden and a fair chance in the race of life to every man.

Such a victory is worth winning and the brave Democrats of Alabama will win it.

Col. Oates in his speech of acceptance recognized the fact that there was a difference of opinion among organized Democrats on the subject of silver and other minor questions, but was confident they would heartily unite in support of the cardinal principles of the party. He also alluded most kindly to that element of the party who have been induced to leave its ranks, and expressed the opinion that by a campaign of conciliation and appeal to reason, many of those good men can be brought back to the party. They will be welcomed by all Democrats. A vote for the democratic nominee for Governor will reinstate them in the party and many will return.

Col. Oates started in life a poor boy. He came out of the war without a cent and did not have enough money to pay for a night's lodging at a hotel in Troy, where he first attended court. A kind friend in the country gave him shelter. The second week of court he got a case and earned twenty-five dollars. This was the beginning of his success. In his speech before the State convention he had the manliness to acknowledge his humble beginning, and pointed out his benefactor from among the delegates who were sent by Pike county to vote for his nomination.

The Oates men in Jacksonville received the news of the nomination of their favorite quietly and there was no crowing over those who had supported Capt. Johnston. This was a proper spirit to display, and it was met by the Johnston men in a spirit of cheerful acquiescence in the result. All feeling growing out of the heated contest has thus been buried here. So mote it be throughout the State.

During the canvass it was charged by some and feared by many that Col. Oates' candidacy meant hostility to the re-election of Senator Morgan. This was denied by Col. Oates' friends, and now it has been completely disproved by the endorsement of Gen. Morgan by the State Convention, in which Col. Oates' friends had forty majority. Both the Oates and Johnston men voted solidly for the resolution.

The Georgia editors have returned from a visit to Mexico where they were royally entertained, by everybody from President Diaz down. The Alabama editors should take some such trip as this at their next annual meeting, which might be postponed to the early fall, when the weather would permit of it.

The Atlanta Constitution, in a most sensible article, says the nomination of Col. Oates "ought to be the signal for complete harmony in the party," and proceeds to urge Democrats in Alabama to support him. The article is notable because the Constitution was an ardent supporter of Capt. Johnston. We shall publish it next week.

Ab Green, son of Geo. Green (colored), of this place, was killed at Birmingham junction on the E. T. V. & G. R. R. the 21st inst. He was switching and got his foot hitched in the switch and was run down. George had another son killed on the L. & N. R. R. at Birmingham about a year ago.

Atlanta Journal: In nominating Oates and endorsing the administration the Democrats of Alabama have declared their preference for democracy over populism or republicanism. That is exactly what the Democrats of Georgia will do the first chance they get.

There is a joint call for a meeting of the Johnston and Oates clubs in Anniston. They will get together and pull unitedly for the Democratic nominee. This is the right spirit for Democrats to show.

Striking miners in Indiana attacked a body of working miners with Winchester, Tuesday, and several men were killed and wounded. Serious trouble was feared at last accounts.

The Democratic supporters of Capt. Johnston in Jacksonville took the nomination of Col. Oates good humoredly and will support him to a man.

The Proper Spirit.

Captain Johnston made a speech before the State convention, after the nomination of Colonel Oates, in which he uttered the following patriotic words:

"Now we are to meet the common enemy. Men are nothing! Measures and principles everything. We must keep the old ship to its course! We must be found in solid phalanx for the old faith! We must stand for the right—for the cause of the people—unswayed by the power of influence. As for my part, it is unnecessary to say that wherever the banner of Democracy waves, wherever the flag of the party floats, I will be found fighting beneath its folds for fair dealing, for peace and harmony, for the eternal principles of justice and the maintenance of Democratic supremacy."

These clarion notes to his followers throughout the State, by Captain Johnston, will inspire them to work as gallantly as their leader. There are now no longer any Johnston men or Oates men in the ranks of the organized Democracy. They are all for the nominee of the Democratic party. It does not matter what his name is. He represents principles which must be maintained for the safety of the State.

The Result in Alabama.

The nomination of Colonel Oates by the Democrats of Alabama, after a hard fight by the friends of Captain Johnston, and the endorsement of the National Democratic administration by most of the county conventions, shows conclusively that the Populist element of the Democratic party has seen its best days in Alabama. The sober second thought of the people is with Mr. Cleveland, and it is more with him every day. It is the same way in Georgia. Of the counties which have acted so far, a large majority have strongly endorsed the President and condemned his detractors. By the time the State Convention meets next August, the sentiment of the State will be very nearly unanimous for the administration. —Rome (Ga.) Tribune.

PLATFORM AND RESOLUTIONS

ADOPTED BY THE STATE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

The Democracy of Alabama, in convention assembled, reaffirm the principles of the democratic party as declared in the platform of our party at Chicago in 1892, and congratulate the country upon the success of those principles in the triumphant election of Grover Cleveland, who, by his generous treatment of our people, has shown that he is the president of the whole country, knowing no north, no south, no east, no west.

Recognizing the wisdom and patriotism of our president, and believing in his fealty to the principles of our party, we endorse his administration of the federal government.

While some of us may differ from him in matters of policy, we are agreed in the belief that he is impelled by motives of highest patriotism and by an unselfish devotion to the highest good of the whole people. While there are differences of opinion among us in matters of detail, we all believe in the free coinage of silver whenever it can be done consistently with the maintenance of a sound and safe currency.

We earnestly urge upon our senators and representatives in congress the speedy reform of the tariff and the speedy repeal of the 10 percent tax on the issue of state banks.

We heartily commend and endorse the present administration of the state government headed by Gov. Thomas G. Jones, who has so wisely and courageously discharged his great trust, and we commend his firm and impartial and fearless execution of the laws as worthy of imitation by his successor.

We pledge to the people of Alabama a continuance of the good government of our state affairs, inaugurated by the election of George S. Houston in 1874.

The election law enacted at the last session of our general assembly is in accordance with the principles upon which are based the laws regulating elections in a large majority of the states of this union, without regard to party, and in tended to obtain at the ballot box a full and free expression of the popular will. We believe in giving it a fair trial, and should it fail to accomplish the end which it was intended to effect, we pledge ourselves to make such changes and alterations therein as may be necessary to effect that end.

We pledge our party to the maintenance of a system of free public schools and to increase appropriations for that purpose whenever the financial condition of the state will permit.

The party is pledged to continue its efforts to remove all the evils of the present convict system and to enact all appropriate legislation to prevent its working injustice to any class of our people.

We extend a cordial invitation to all voters of Alabama who believe in the principles of Democracy and are in favor of the maintenance of good government to unite with us in the election of the ticket nominated by this convention.

The resolutions were adopted without a dissenting voice. The portion relating to Cleveland and Governor Jones were received with great applause.

Mr. Tompkins then offered separate resolutions as follows:

In favor of the construction of the Nicaragua canal under its practical ownership or control of the government. Adopted.

In favor of a system of direct vote at Democratic primaries, and for every candidate to be accorded his probate as cast. Lost.

Resolved, That recognizing the wise experience, the eminent ability and the devotion to the best interests of the state of Alabama of our distinguished senior senator, the Hon. John T. Morgan, and believing in his fealty to the principles of Democracy, though some of us may differ with him in matters of detail, and since his acquaintance with measures now pending before congress of vast importance not only to his constituents, but the whole people of the United States, makes it important that he should be retained in his present position, we will representatives of the Democratic party of Alabama, in convention assembled, hereby cordially and heartily commend him to the people of Alabama for re-election to the senate of the United States.

Decatur News: The Republicans of Decatur are not pleased with the nomination of Colonel Oates. They know he is a strong man.

Convention Notes.

The vote in the State Convention stood Oates 271 and a fraction and Johnston 232 and a fraction.

Capt. Johnston, like the true Democrat that he is, appeared before the State Convention, after the ballot, and pledged himself to the support of Col. Oates, the nominee.

In Col. Oates' speech of acceptance, he alluded to Capt. Johnston in most kind and complimentary terms, and said that he (Oates) had tried it three times before he got the nomination for Governor and enquired "who knows but that my distinguished competitor may try the third time and succeed."

Despite the fact that the contest between Oates and Johnston had been close and heated, the greatest good humor prevailed at the Convention and harmony and conservatism marked all its proceedings.

There were contests from three counties before the State Executive Committee for seats in the Convention. The one from Colbert referred only to one beat and involved only a point of party law, which will be settled by the new Committee. The delegates from that county were for Johnston and were seated. In the contest from Hale the committee declared the Johnston delegates entitled to seats by a vote of 21 to 7. In the Lee county contest the Oates delegates were seated by the unanimous vote of the committee. The majority of the committee were Oates men, but so fair were their decisions that the contests were not appealed to the convention. In the Lee county contest the matter turned upon the right of Populists to vote in the primaries. The State Committee, composed of both Oates and Johnston men decided unanimously that they had not such right.

Congressman Dick Clark was made temporary and permanent chairman of the State Convention. He was the idol of the Convention and every mention of his name elicited loud applause.

The Cleveland men were largely in the majority in the Convention and had it in their power to adopt any platform and pass any resolutions they might have desired to pass; but Chairman Smith of the State Executive Committee, Chairman Clark of the Convention and Col. Oates all counseled such resolutions as all good Democrats can endorse and unite on. Conservatism and conciliation will mark the canvass of Col. Oates from start to finish.

Five hundred men came up from Col. Oates' section of the State on a special train to the Convention to urge his nomination. They had a brass band with them and were very enthusiastic.

Kolb was in Montgomery during the State Convention, watching for the expected split in the Democratic party, but it did not come. After the party spoke through its delegates in the Convention, the Democrats all suddenly became Oates men and metaphorically fell upon each others necks and mutually vowed to beat Reuben "away yonder."

Col. Oates' Victory.

Macon (Ga.) Telegraph:

The county conventions were held in Alabama yesterday, and there seems no longer good reason to doubt that Oates has carried the State and will be the Democratic candidate for Governor. We regard his victory as a very important event and likely to have large influence in the politics of the immediate future.

In Alabama the political movement which originated with the ambitious leaders of the Farmer's Alliance, and has developed in its extreme form into Populism, has shown greater strength than in any other State of the South except South Carolina. Had its leader been a man of good character; it is probable that at the last election he would have swept the State. As it was, the movement put the Democratic party in extreme peril and is yet formidable.

In the face of this movement the Democratic politicians, and especially those in office have shown a tendency to shrink back from the natural and proper position of their party on the leading questions of public policy. It has been difficult to tell from the talk of many of them whether they were Democrats or Populists.

But there was one exception and that exception was Mr. Oates. He remained an old fashioned Democrat and went into the campaign the avowed friend of the Democratic administration and the open enemy of the financial and economic heresies which the new political movement was trying to foist upon the party. He made the race almost without the help of the office holders. Only one Congressman, Mr. Clarke, gave him his support. The influence of all the others, including the two Senators, has been against him. It was a brave and manly fight for the maintenance of sound Democratic principles that Col. Oates made, and his victory will encourage the party in every Southern State to stop contending with un-Democratic factions and stand up firmly for its principles.

Oates Stood by Cleveland.

Charleston News and Courier:

William C. Oates will be the next Governor of Alabama. He has been fairly chosen as the standard-bearer of the Democratic party, and will be elected, but not without hard fighting all 'long the line. The situation in Alabama is peculiar, the relations between the two factions of the party are strained, the Republicans have been registering and the New England Protectionists are raising money to assist in the overthrow of Democratic rule, but with anything like honest and vigilant work on the part of the regular Democracy the result cannot be regarded as at all doubtful. Mr. Oates has made an excellent Congressman—there has never been any question as to his position upon the leading issues of the day; he has never abated a jot in his loyalty to Democratic principles and he will make a conservative, but progressive, and at the same time, trustworthy Governor. We congratulate him on the great victory he has won. We especially congratulate the Democrats of Alabama on the still greater triumph they have won by the nomination of Mr. Oates. The contest from the beginning was a contest of truth against error, of right against wrong, of principle against policy, and truth has prevailed.

This is the fact which we would not have the people of the country to forget, Alabama remains true to the Democratic party and to its matchless leader, Grover Cleveland. The result of the Alabama primary election is, of course, a great personal triumph for Mr. Oates, and we would not rob him of any of the honor to which he is entitled; but his nomination is far more than a personal triumph. It is a triumph of principle, an endorsement of the National Democratic Administration, a victory for honest politics. And as such it is an example, and should be an inspiration to the Democrats in all the other Southern States and in every State of the Union.

The Best Tax.

The income tax is the best, because it is the fairest, most equal and most easily paid tax. It makes a man pay for what he gets. He does not pay a cent for what he does not receive. The bill in the senate is defective but better than none. It only lays 2 percent on incomes over $4,000. How is it abroad? It is from 1 percent to 40 percent. Think of that in comparison with the trifling 2 percent tax in the senate bill. If the 40 percent tax of the grand duchy of Baden were levied upon the "thirty-six of the leading millionaires of New York city, whose combined income amount to $75,000,000 a year they would pay $30,000,000 in taxes. In other words, those thirty-six ladies and gentlemen would pay as much as the Wilson bill proposes to levy on the entire wealth of the union. —Washington Messenger.

The Alabama Democrats.

Boston Herald:

It looks as if Senator Morgan had lost his stake in his anti Cleveland fight in Alabama. The county conventions called to elect delegates to the Democratic State convention have about all been held, and the national administration seems positively to have won the day, and by such a good majority that the very seriously threatened peace of the Democratic party in Alabama will not be endangered, as was expected. The State convention meets next Tuesday and will nominate Wm. C. Oates for Governor.

A Good Model to Imitate.

There was no more extreme advocate of Capt. Johnston's nomination in the whole State than The Mobile News. It even went so far as to print a roster last Monday in honor of his alleged victory. It is peculiarly gratifying, therefore, to see it climb up on the bandwagon in the following cheerful and graceful style:

"The fight is over, and the battle is ended. The long and fierce struggle has closed. The nominee of the Democratic party for Governor is Col. W. C. Oates. While not our selection—for we preferred another, in whose behalf we have labored faithfully for the past few weeks previous to the nomination—we cheerfully submit to the will of the people, and their choice is our choice."

It will require all the strength of the Democratic party to win the coming fight. Let there be no bickering or straggling, but let all work faithfully to secure the election of the chosen leader against any and all comers."

Memorial Day Exercises.

Hebron, Ala., May 19, '94.

Many of the citizens of this neighborhood met at Shiloh cemetery today and spent a few hours in association with their dead by decorating the sacred mounds under which their loved ones sleep. After this sacred and solemn association was over, they met at the Primitive Baptist church, which is near by.

Religious exercises were conducted by W. Boozer and others. It is befitting that every community should recognize Memorial days, we will learn to cultivate this spirit with gladness in our hearts. X

Alabama's Next Governor.

Colonel Oates is a true and earnest Democrat who is loyal to the core, yet strong in his own convictions and not at all lacking in the courage to maintain them. He has differed with the President in regard to his financial policy, but it has been an honest difference, such as may be held by men animated by the same lofty purpose, yet entertaining opposite views with regard to the means of reaching the same end. In his opening speech of the campaign Colonel Oates stated his position candidly and explicitly, and he has followed the platform then laid down consistently in all the speeches he has made since. He not only deprecated the abuse and condemnation of the Democratic administration but combated them.

The result in Alabama is a triumph for pure Democracy, unclouded by the taint of Populism, and as such will be hailed with satisfaction by Democrats everywhere. —Houston (Tex.) Post.

Democracy in Alabama.

Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer-Sun:

The defeat of Colonel Oates on the platform on which he conducted his campaign would have been an unwise and undeserved rebuke to the administration, would have seriously added to the demoralization and disintegration of the party in Alabama, and would have given comfort and encouragement to its enemies elsewhere. Now that the campaign for the nomination has closed, it should bring with it an end to all differences and divisions in the Alabama Democracy. They should come together on a common platform, with a purpose to battle together for Democracy. No Democrat can hesitate to follow in the thickest of the fight the gallant standard bearer who will lead them fearlessly and aggressively to victory. He has a long and honorable career, and the people of Alabama are familiar with it.

In the fight he is to make against the Populists, and the Republicans and New England money, that is to be used to corrupt the election and subvert the will of the people, he will stand in need of the active, earnest and patriotic support of every Democrat in Alabama. The election in August will be the first battle of the year, and the echo of its guns will reverberate around the Union. The Democratic armies in other States will stand with listening ears and anxious hearts. Let them hear the shouts of a triumphant Democracy, and they will be taken up and repeated on every field in every State, and the Old Guard will again sweep the country.

The court house was the scene, Thursday night, of two mighty oratorical efforts. Mr. Boyd Green, of Alexandria, spoke to the people of a new political party and about Kolb's old one. He was followed by Mr. P. L. Hammond, advocating the pure Democracy of his elders and the south. His speech was eloquent and sensible.

Dr. Forney Stevenson, son of Hon. H. L. Stevenson of this place, has gone to Montgomery to practice. He is not yet twenty-one years of age, but is a graduate of the State Normal School here and the College of Physicians and Surgeons, of New York, with high honors. He is one of the very brightest and most promising young men in the State. He is a student by nature and will reach distinction in his profession before he is thirty years of age.

Oates is the Man.

Atlanta Gazette:

The victory by Colonel Oates, of Alabama, in his race for the nomination for governor of that state, is what might logically have been expected.

It emphasizes the application of a faithful and devoted people to one of the most gallant and unswerving democrats in the country, and was the expression of a merited and well deserved compliment.

Colonel Oates has been for a long time a trusted leader of the Democratic hosts of an enlightened and progressive state, and through evil report and good report he has borne the standard with which he has been entrusted like a true and fearless knight. He has been faithful in every circumstance of public life, and has ever guarded with fortitude and devotion the interests of his constituents and the honor of his party. It was but natural the people of the state had served so well should bestow upon him this manifestation of their appreciation of his heroic services.

NOTICE.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Scheuchs Sulphur Springs Company will be held at my office in the court house on June 14th, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Child's Dream of a Star

CHARLES DICKENS' BEAUTIFUL STORY

There was once a child, and he strolled about a good deal, and thought of a number of things. He had a sister who was a child, too, and his constant companion. They wondered at the beauty of flowers; the wonderer at the height and blueness of the sky; they wondered at the depth of the water; they wondered at the goodness and power of God, who made them so lovely. They used to say to one another sometimes: Suppose all the children upon the earth were to die would the flowers and the water and the sky be sorry? For, said they, the buds are the children of the flowers, and the little playful streams that gambol down the hill-sides are the children of the water, and the smallest bright specks playing at hide and seek in the sky all night must surely be the children of the stars; and they would all be grieved to see their playmates, the children of men no more.

There was one clear shining star that used to come out in the sky before the rest, near the church spire above the graves. It was larger and more beautiful, they thought, than all the others, and every night they watched for it, standing hand in hand at the window. Whoever saw it first, cried out, "See the star." And after that they cried out both together knowing so well when it would rise, and where. So they grew to be such friends with it that before lying down in their beds they always looked out once again to bid it goodnight; and when they were turning around to sleep they used say, "God bless the star!"

But while she was still young, oh, very young, the sister drooped and came to be so weak that she could no longer stand at the window at night, and then the child looked out sadly by himself, and when he saw the star turned round said to the patient, pale face on the bed, "I see the star!" and then a smile would come upon the face, and a little, weak voice used to say, "God bless my brother and the star!"

And so the time came, all too soon, when the child looked out all alone, and when there was no face on the bed, and when there was a grave among the graves not there before, and when the star made long rays down toward him as he saw it through his tears. Now these rays were so bright, and they seemed to make such a shining way from earth to heaven, that when the child went to the solitary bed he dreamed about the star, and dreamed that, lying where he was he saw a train of people taken up that sparkling road by angels; and the star opening showed him a great world of light where many more such angels waited to receive them.

All these angels who were waiting turned their beaming eyes upon the people who were carried up into the star, and some came out from the long rows in which they stood, and fell upon the people's necks and kissed them tenderly, and went away with them down avenues of light, and were so happy in their company that lying in his bed, he wept for joy.

But there were many angels who did not go with them, and among them one he knew. The patient face that once had lain upon the bed was glorified and radiant, but his heart found out his sister among all the host.

His sister's angel lingered near the entrance of the star and said to the leader among those who had brought the people thither:

"Is my brother coming?" And he said "No." She was turning hopefully away when the child stretched out his arms and cried, "Oh, my sister, I am here. Take me!" And then she turned her beaming eyes upon him, and it was night, and the star was shining into the room, making long rays down towards him as he saw it through his tears.

From that hour forth the child looked out upon the star as the home he was to go to when his time should come; and he thought that he did not belong to the earth alone, but to the star, too, because of his sister's angel gone before. There was a body born to be a brother to the child, and while he was so little that he had never yet spoken a word, he stretched out his tiny form on the bed and died. Again the child dreamed of the open star, and of the company of angels, and the train of people and the rows of angels, with their beaming eyes all turned upon those people's faces.

Said his sister's angel to the leader:

"Is my brother coming?" And he said, "Not that one, but another."

As the child beheld the brother's angel in her arms, he cried, "Oh, my sister, I am here. Take me!"

And she turned and smiled upon him and the star was shining.

He grew to be a young man and was busy at his books, when an old servant came to him and said:

"Thy mother is no more. I bring her blessings upon her darling son."

Again at night he saw the star and all that former company. Said his sister's angel to the leader, "Is my brother coming?"

And he said, "Thy mother."

A mighty cry of joy went through all the star, because the mother was reunited to her two children.

And he stretched out his arms and cried, "O, mother, sister and brother, I am here! Take me!" And they answered him, "Not yet!" and the star was shining.

He grew to be a man whose hair was turning gray, and he was sitting in his chair by the fireside heavy with grief, and with his face bedewed with tears, when the star opened once again.

Said his sister's angel to the leader, "Is my brother coming?"

And he said, "Nay, but his maiden daughter."

And the man who had been a child saw his daughter, newly lost to him, a celestial creature among these three, and he said: "My daughter's head is on my sister's bosom, and her arm is around my mother's neck, and at her feet is the baby of old time, and I can bear the parting from her. God be praised!" And the star was shining.

Thus the child came to be an old man, and his once smooth face was wrinkled and his steps were slow and feeble, and his back was bent.

And one night as he lay upon his bed, his children standing around, he cried, as he cried long ago: "I see the star!"

They whispered one to another, "He is dying." And he said: "I am. My age is falling from me like a garment, and I move towards the star as a child. And O, my Father, I thank thee that it has so often opened to receive those dear ones who await me!"

And the star was shining; and it shines upon his grave.—Charles Dickens.

THE EARTH OPENED

AND SWALLOWED ALIVE MANY PERSONS.

Washington, May 19.—Advices were received at the state department today from Consul Plumacher, at Maracaibo, dated May 5, showing that the greatest damage of the Venezuelan earthquake was done on the famous San Carlos and Merida railway, now nearly completed in the Andes. The axis of the disturbances, which lasted at some points three days, was along its line. Several of the splendid bridges were totally destroyed and others were considerably affected. Several stations were thrown down, the rails were twisted and bent, and in some places broken apart and a number of lives were lost. Lagunillas, with all its inhabitants, disappeared entirely, a lake now occupying its site. In some places black water having a fetid odor was expelled from the crevasses in the earth. The earthquake is said to have been much worse than those of 1849 and 1875. At the latter the flourishing city of Cuenca, Colombia, was demolished and 5,000 persons lost their lives. The Venezuelan minister at Washington has been asked to receive contributions in this country for the relief of the suffering of the catastrophe.

Killed By Strikers.

Birmingham, May 20.—Another chapter has been added to the list of outrages committed recently by increased striking miners. About 3 o'clock this morning a body of masked miners went to the house of Walter Glover, a non-striker, and deliberately assassinated him in cold blood. He was asleep at his boarding place and was awakened by repeated raps upon a door near his bedside. Aaking he went to the door, and before opening he was asked who knocked. The reply came that it was officers, when the door was half opened. Reports from shotguns, well loaded with buckshot and Winchester rifles, broke the stillness of the morning and filled the body with bullets and shot, producing death instantly. The door was shot into splinters and his body riddled. There were some other inmates of the house, one of whom was slightly wounded with shot.

Glover had been working all the time and had been instrumental in obtaining other labor to fill the places of strikers. This is the reason assigned for the cowardly crime.

As soon as the shots were fired special deputies, who were on duty near by, began to fire on the strikers, which was returned. Volley after volley was fired, and the miners began dispersing and retreating. This was kept up for fully half a mile.

During this time one of the retreaters was seen to fall, who was picked up and carried away. Dogs were immediately put on trail and tonight three strikers are in jail, one of whom bears the mark of a Winchester in his hat. They are Con Sullivan, Jere Hilliard and John Driver.

Great excitement prevails among the miners.

Largest Library in the World.

In round numbers, the National Library of the United States contains 700,000 bound volumes and 200,000 pamphlets, all of which are at present crowded into a room in the capitol—a room which was full fifteen years ago. Yet the accumulation has gone on until there is barely room to walk about in the library itself, while a dozen rooms elsewhere in the building are filled with the overflow. With the need in plain sight it took congress several years to make up its mind to erect a library building, but finally in April, 1886, it was decided to do so.

A site was chosen on Capitol Hill, directly east of the capitol itself, and $550,000 was appropriated for its purchase. Forty or fifty buildings had to be removed before excavations could be made for the foundation.

It took 2,700 feet of fencing 12 feet high to enclose the ground, and it was nearly four years after the fence was built before any part of the building was visible over its top.

There is a great deal of the library—470 feet long by 340 feet wide. It covers 111,000 square feet of ground and will be 140 feet in height from the ground to the top of the dome when finished. That is, next to the capitol, it will be the largest edifice in Washington and the largest library building in the world.

When congress did decide to do the work it was pleased to have it done well. The utmost care was used in securing a firm foundation, and the best of material has been put into the superstructure. All the material is of home manufacture, except the white enameled brick. When the contract was made 1888 no enameled brick were made in this country—certainly not in sufficient quantities. Several states are represented in the construction of the library building. New Hampshire and Maryland furnish the granite; the structural ironwork came from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Indiana; the ordinary brick are made within the district of Columbia, and the floor tiling comes from Massachusetts and Vermont. "The new library building" declares Mr. Spooner, "will suffice for 150 years to come. When it is finished it will hold 4,000,000 volumes—nearly 50 per cent more than are now embraced in any library in the world." In national libraries France now leads the world. Hers contains a full million more volumes than any of Great Britain, the next largest. Germany is next in rank, and Russia is fourth. The United States comes next in order.—Kate Field's Washington.

Probate Court Notice.

STATE OF ALABAMA, Calhoun County.

In Probate Court for said county, Special Term 24 h day of May 1894.

This day came H. L. Stevenson, the administrator of the estate of Thos. A. Walker deceased, and presents to this court his petition in writing and under oath, and in form required by law, praying for an order and decree of this court, to sell certain real estate described in said petition, for the purpose of distribution and payment of debts upon the grounds that the personal property is not sufficient to pay the debts of said estate, while said petition is examined by this Court and placed on file for the inspection of all concerned. It is therefore ordered and decreed by the court, that the 1st day of July A. D. 1894, be and is hereby appointed as a day for the hearing and consideration of said petition, and that notice of the filing and nature of said petition, and the day set to hear and determine the same, be given by publication for three successive weeks in the Jacksonville Republican a newspaper published in said county, notifying all persons interested to be and appear before this court on said day of July 1st, 1894, to set their face there to show cause, if any, why said petition should not be granted. EXAMPT F. CROOK, Judge of Probate.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrup, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children." Dr. G. C. Osceola, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves." Dr. J. F. Kinkadee, Conway, Ark.

Allen G. Smith, M.D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it." UNITED HOSPITAL AND DISPENSARY, Boston, Mass.
